

Overview of Intronis Technologies and the eSureIT Online Backup Service

About Intronis

Intronis Technologies is based in Englewood, New Jersey, a suburb of New York City. The founders of Intronis have more than 30 years of combined IT consulting, computer system and software design and network installation for small and medium sized businesses and individuals.

In the late 1990's, the founders, after talking with dozens of their clients and other IT Professionals came to the realization that most small businesses were not backing up their data at all. The few companies that did backup, often did not properly rotate backup tapes, did not verify that backups were successful, and almost always stored their backup storage devices onsite, often right on top of their computers. This recognition led to the creation of Intronis Technologies and after three years of research and development, software design and testing, the launch of the eSureIT online backup service in 2003.

About eSureIT

eSureIT was created to satisfy the broad need for an easy to use, automatic and secure method of backing up data offsite. The goal of eSureIT was to design a cost-effective backup service that could be setup and used by anyone with even the most limited computer expertise, yet with the functionality and features of backup systems used by Fortune 500 companies. Since its market introduction, eSureIT has quickly gained recognition with customers nationwide, who have come to recognize that eSureIT provides them with a backup solution for servers, workstations and laptops that is simple to setup, easy to use, completely automatic and most importantly, secure and reliable.

However, software features and usability are only part of what makes eSureIT stand out. Intronis has built its reputation on providing world class customer service and technical support. At Intronis, we understand how important each customer's data is, and that understanding influences everything that we do. We do not view backing up as just another computer application or software product. We view backing up as insuring the valuable assets of a business or an individual, whether it be a medical office's client records or a family's irreplaceable digital pictures. Intronis's eSureIT online backup service truly is insurance for your data.
